- Californian-raised Iranian-American, now based in New York.

LEE CAMP

www.leecamp.net

<http://www.youtube.com/LeeCamp>

- Political satirist and left-wing political activist.
- Although Lee has been writing and performing comedy for 15 years, he came into most of America's consciousness when he went on a national right-wing news network (Fox) and called them a "parade of propaganda and festival of ignorance" live on their own morning show. The viral video got millions of views and more than one hate e-mail involving the phrase "dirty Jew".
- But Lee is also known for his unique blend of left-wing activism and stand-up comedy, which garners him truly die-hard fans and equally die-hard critics. Among the fans is George Carlin's daughter Kelly, who called Lee one of the few comics keeping her father's torch alive. She said, "I was blown away by his balls, and immediately thought, 'He's like my dad!' ".
- His many writing and TV credits include appearances on Comedy Central, MTV, SpikeTV, PBS, E network, Showtime and ABC's "Good Morning America", as well as contributing humour to The Onion newspaper, the Huffington Post, and The Guardian and dozens of local radio stations.

- Lee has been a featured performer for the 2008 Democratic Convention, on Jon Oliver's BBC Radio show Political Animal, and in a host of guest commentary spots TV.
- Lee is featured as one of the up-and-coming cultural critic comedians in the hit book Satiristas by Paul Provenza, which also includes interviews with everyone from George Carlin to Billy Connolly to Lewis Black to Robin Williams to Roseanne Barr.
- "Lee Camp is an amazing writer and a great political thinker. He's the change you and I want to see." – Janeane Garofalo
- "Congrats to Lee on his balls and integrity. Everything he does is SO good. We need more comedians with his kind of fearlessness. It's so rare to find such artful, thoughtful passion in comedy these days. ...or in life. He's waiting for a generation to catch up with him." – Paul Provenza
- "Super impressive." – Roseanne Barr

BECKY DONOHUE

- Comedian, satirist, filmmaker, writer, blogger, high school Latin American History teacher.
- Has performed as a standup at Stand Up New York, Town Hall, The Culture Project, Headlines the Nation Magazine Cruise with Governor Howard Dean, and has opened for Lizz Winstead, Marga Gomez, Jim Hightower, Markos Moulitas, The Yes Men, Cynthia Nixon.
- Founder of and performer with Laughing Liberally, a political comedy collective that performs throughout the country.
- Written for Comedy Central, The New York Times, The Nation, Gawker, Kenneth Cole's blog AWEARNESS, Nerve regular contributor to Huffington Post, Alternet, Talking Points Memo Cafe, The Faster Times.
- Writer and director of political comedy viral videos including "women for McCain".
- Has featured in NY Times, LA Times, NY Magazine, The Nation, and has appeared on MSNBC, FOX News, The Alan Colmes Show, RT, GritTV with Laura Flanders, WBAI, Serious, The Young Turks, Jezebel, Air America Radio.
- Producer of Tim Robbin's film Embedded; Estela Bravo's documentary Free to Fly.
- Outreach director of The Take, the award-winning documentary by Avi Lewis and Naomi Klein.
- Director/producer of various documentaries, including: La Memoria es Vaga, (official selection Amnesty International Firefly festival, winner Best Cinematography Granada Film Festival); an oral-history video project on New Yorkers during the Spanish Civil War commissioned by Museum of the City of New York; a feature about Camp Kinderland, the legendary social justice summer camp Katie (along with her mother and grandmother) attended, where the bunks are named after Harriet Tubman, Pablo Neruda, Anne Frank, focusing on their "Peace Olympics," the camp's peaceful non-violent alternative to other camps' competitive color wars.
- Is in a Palestinian-Jewish women's dialog group with a co-founder of Ms. Magazine and a Palestinian diplomat.
- Was once sent a bag of chocolates by Whoopie Goldberg; and was written to by John Cusack's assistant to discuss a project but her return e-mail was ignored.
- "Every blacklisted comic is finally getting justice and its name is Katie Halper. I feel a great wave of pity for anyone who has never seen Katie perform." – Al Gioradano, Narco News
- "The only profanity-free comic. Cute and somewhat brainy." – National Review Online
- "Don't let her sweet, mild-mannered looks fool you. Katie is the antonym of "politically correct", dangerously funny and smart." – Markos Moulitsas, Daily Kos
- "Katie is such a sharp observer. No doubt that is what makes her so funny. She sees stuff early and by the time others are talking about it she's bounced it around in her head for a while and has figured out all the ridiculousness and irony. She is like our pre homo-erectus ancestors, chewing up the food of politics for and then passing it down to us youngsters in an easier-to-digest kiss. But not as gross." – Gina Cooper, Net Roots Consultant
